since the late Union reverses, both East and West, one will not be long in coming to the conclasion, from the striking contrast of the boundless zeal and doubled efforts of the former with the passiveness and demoralization of the latter, that the distrust entertained by every intelligent, patriotic mind north of the Ohio River, since the neutrality experiment, of the frustworthiness of the Unionism of Kentucky has been pretty well founded. All the accounts from the interior of the State agree that nine-tenths of the so-called Unionists are gracefully resigning themselves to the fate of being lorded over by the invaders without either verbal protests or active resistance. Thousands, not existed with abject and many and the contrast their preference for Southern rule, both by word and action. There can no longer be any south as to the eminent success of the Rebel efforts in recruining throughout the Blue Gruss region. Positive information has been received here that at Lexington alone nearly 2,400 individuals, including a large number of members of the wendlikest and most influential families, enhanced in less than four days. At Frankfort, Darville, and other points, an equal abundance of recruits has been obtained. An days. At Frankfort, Danville, and other points, an equal abundance of recruits has been obtained. An old resident of Danville assures me that hundreds of men, heretefore believed to be loval, had joined the Rebel ranks from Boyle and Woodford Counties. Not only a plentiful harvest of recruits is being thereof up by the invaders, but hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property—horses, provisions, corp, hay, etc.—has been devoted by the

Washington, Monday, Sept 15, 1821,
The following is a list of the wounded of the recent battles of Bull Run, who were in the hospital at the Van Pelt House, about two miles from the battle-field. They were under the care of Dr. John S. Jamison, Surgeon of the Söth Regiment New-York Volunteers; Dr. James A. Armstrong, Assistant Surgeon of the 73d Pennsylvania Regiment, and Dr. T. F. Duncan of the 90th Pennsylvania Regiment.

The sufferings of these men were very severe, nearly two hundred of them being left for two or three days without food of any kind—none reaching them from our lines, notwithstanding the almost superhuman efforts of our Government, and none superhuman efforts of our Government, and none and Surgeon of the foot Pennsylvania Registroscopic of the surface of the surface

George G. Mitchell agst. Samuel Phillips.
This was an action to recover the value of an iron safe levided apon and said by the sheriff of the City and County of New-York, by the direction of the defendant in April 1861. The defense was that the safe belonged to George H. Wouster, and not to said plaintiff at the time of the levy.

Judgment for the plaintiff or $101.27.

Edward H. Spooter, alto may for plaintiff. Millen Pest and Nichols, attorneys for defendant.